Principal's Pen

I trust that, although church was online, your resurrection Sunday was still a great time to remember Christ's resurrection and be reminded that regardless of how long we live physically, we have the great hope of eternity with Christ if we know Him as our personal Savior. I trust that your spring break was truly refreshing and that, although your family might have been stuck at home, you have not lost your sense of humor or enjoyment of the precious gift of life.

As we enter this next few weeks of school, I am praying that you and your children will be able to focus and as we take it one day at a time, will make the time educationally beneficial. I know that a number of people have asked about the end of year events here at BBCS; and since none of us fully knows the future, we will have to be patient and see what we are legally allowed to do. Then we will respond. In the meantime, let's continue to make the most of each day's opportunity and know that eventually we will get through this challenge with God's grace. We should have some clarity about the end of the year events after we go through the next few weeks.

I have posted a few helpful links in this newsletter. For easy access, some of them will also be posted on our website over the next few weeks.

Please don't miss listening to the podcast from our national Christian school association, AACCS, which will be a help to you as you reenter the world of online schooling. The podcast features Maureen, a parent working from home, as she describes some great routines and advice for those trying to parent, work, and guide students to stay on task academically.

I am praying for you. Please reach out to let us know how we may best serve you this week.

Stay encouraged.
